To the Reader.

Gentle Reader, I haue set forth this Almanach for the yere of our Lord God. M. D. LXII. according to the Iulian account, and not according to the Gregorian, for that the Gregorian account is not yet receiued in all countries, and also for that it is not yet fully knowen how many dayes the yere shall be encreased or diminished, for the Gregorian account doth encrease the yere three dayes in 400. yeres, but the Astronomers are not yet fully agreed whether it be iust so much or no, for some say it is more, some say it is lesse, and some say it is iust so much, but I will not dispute of that matter, for I am not minded to write any thing in this Almanach, but that which I know certainly, and haue proued by experience, and therefore I will not write any thing of the Gregorian account, but will follow the Iulian account, which is certain and true, and hath been vsed of long time, and is yet vsed in many countries, and I trust shall be vsed vntil the day of iudgement. Farewell.
